THE UNFORTUNATE.

[illegible]REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,

KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, [illegible] Established in 1854, [illegible] treatment of Sexual and [illegible] such as Gonor[illegible] Stricture, Syphilis in [illegible] Seminal Weakness, [illegible] Skin Diseases (of [illegible]) and Ulcerated Legs [illegible]

Horrible Disease.

[illegible] thousands of persons, both male and [illegible] there who are suffering out a miserable exis[illegible] the [illegible] of secret indulgences, or from [illegible] into the [illegible]! Look at their pallid, emaciated [illegible] faces and their broken-down constitu[illegible] [illegible] them for the happiness of [illegible] [illegible] of life. In this horrid situation [illegible] or until death closes the scene. Let [illegible] [illegible] attend to those who are suffering [illegible] [illegible] horrible life-destroying maladies—[illegible] [illegible] for and cured before it be too late. [illegible] [illegible] to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has [illegible] his especial study for years, and [illegible] to cure the most inveterate cases without [illegible] [illegible] drugs. It is important to [illegible] [illegible], or to those who are interested [illegible] their [illegible], to be careful of the many [illegible] [illegible] who infest all cities, publishing their [illegible] [illegible] in a few days, imposing upon the [illegible] using the names of eminent physicians [illegible] and other [illegible]. Be therefore careful and [illegible] [illegible], or you may fall into the hands of [illegible]

[illegible] Seminal Weakness.

[illegible], the consequence of self-abuse [illegible] [illegible], or depraved sexual indulgence, is [illegible] [illegible] of both sexes to an almost unlimited [illegible] [illegible], with unerring certainty, the following [illegible] symptoms, unless combatted by scientific [illegible] [illegible], viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots [illegible] pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise [illegible] [illegible] of leaves and rattling of chariots, [illegible] [illegible], weakness of the limbs, confused [illegible] intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence [illegible] strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, [illegible] to shun society, loss of memory, [illegible] pimples and various eruptions about the [illegible] [illegible], fated breath, coughs, consumption, [illegible] [illegible] and frequent insanity. If [illegible] [illegible], should apply immediately, either in [illegible] [illegible], and have a cure effected by his new [illegible] [illegible] of treating this disease, which never fails [illegible] a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give [illegible] Dollars to any person who will prove [illegible] [illegible] that he was cured of this complaint by [illegible] [illegible] Francisco quacks.

DR. GIBBON is responsible, and will give [illegible] [illegible] written instrument, binding himself to [illegible] and permanent cure, or make no charge. [illegible] at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, [illegible] [illegible] a letter to Doctor Gibbon, stating case, [illegible] [illegible] of time the disease has [illegible] [illegible] promptly forwarded, free [illegible] [illegible] any part of the country, [illegible] [illegible] for Ten Dollars, [illegible] [illegible] through Wells, Fargo & Co.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 6, 1866.

The general impression here among the politicians is, that the President has made a terrible mistake in the New Orleans matter. It is not simply that the murderous massacre by the [illegible] of the President is an unfortunate [illegible] for him—that is not the worst of it; the President is to a frightful extent responsible for the murders. His dispatch to Gov. Wells is regarded as insolent in the extreme, and it shows how hypocritical and insincere are all his arguments in reference to the independence of the rebellious States. Would he have dared to address such a dispatch to the Governor of New York? Of course not. What then becomes of his pretensions for State sovereignty at the South? But worse still is his supercession of Gov. Wells and recognition of an inferior officer as the practical Governor. This outrage [illegible] others. What if the President were to send a dispatch to the Attorney-General of New York, placing the U. S. troops at his disposal in case of an outbreak? Yet Andrew Johnson claims that New York and Louisiana are on a par—that one is just as much entitled as the other to representation in Congress! Did anybody ever hear of such inconsistency? One's indignation is lost in the sense of the ludicrous.

One sees Mr. Seward's hand in all this blundering, and especially in the bold and impudent interference with Gov. Wells. That is just like him. He admires Napoleon, and has a peculiar fondness for despotic acts, though he uses salve and soft soap liberally. Arguing all the while that Louisiana stands just where New York does—with the same rights—he commits an act against the Governor of Louisiana which, if it had been committed against Gov. Fenton, would result in the impeachment of the President.

I find few people who do not admit that the President has made a great blunder. Even the Copperheads, some of them, admit it, and express the wish that he had been more cautious. But Andrew Johnson is a man who knows nothing of caution. He indulges his blind, mad passions and that is all. He is exceedingly angry over the conduct of the Radicals. Very naturally they are making excellent uses of the New Orleans massacre to rouse the loyal people of the country from lethargy. Already the Northern States are on fire, and Weed, Raymond and some of the more intelligent of the time-servers are alarmed at the prospect. Weed has thought all along that he could carry the State of New York for Johnson—and bread and butter. He is blue over the present aspect of things. New York is waking up to see the danger of trusting such a middle-course partisan as the President. Its wise and moderate Senators—Morgan and Harris—do not trust him, and this, too, after they have tried their best to get along without a quarrel—without a rupture. Seward has very little influence in this State. Weed has the influence of a corruptionist and that is all. They cannot affect Republican votes I am sure. I predict, therefore, that New York will elect a Republican Governor in November next.

Among the foolish things done by Congress on the last night of its session was an appropriation of $10,000 to a Miss Victorine Ream, of this city, to make a statue of the late martyr, Lincoln. Miss Ream is a girl of 16 or 18 years, who made a tolerable bust in plaster of Mr. Lincoln last summer, and she has spent the entire session in trying to lobby this item through Congress. What her character is I do not know, but she certainly looks modestly, for she has been waylaying members for the last six months in the hope that she could get their votes and money. But art-letters are not to be found in Congress. Scores of daubs and eccentric performers are numerous enough. Mr. Sumner and Mr. Nesmith had a tilt at each other, and as might have been expected Nesmith appealed to a vulgar prejudice; why not get our decorations and works of art done at home? Sure enough, why not? Why were $40,000 given to Brunedi to bedaub the cap of the dome? But we should pay our money to our eminent artists and sculptors. It is an outrage upon common sense to single out an ignorant girl in this city and give her $10,000 to make a statue of Mr. Lincoln, and pass by all our sculptors. A law ought to be made putting this whole matter of decoration into the hands of an art commissioner. Congress is stupid in such matters. It always buys fourth-rate pictures simply because it gives way, not to the picture, but to the lobby. In this case the youthful Miss Ream [illegible] many votes by her personal conduct.

Senator Stewart, of Nevada, took hold good in the debate on increasing the pay of members. He said:

> As to the matter of congressional salaries I can [illegible] without the slightest embarrassment because by the amendment on that subject my compensation is reduced about $2,000 a year by cutting down the mileage. I think the bill ought to pass, and I do not think anybody will complain of this Congress for paying themselves $5,000 a year. I do not think any man is fit to be in Congress who cannot earn that amount elsewhere. I believe the people are willing to pay and desirous to pay what it costs an economical man to live. If you pay less than that you must necessarily have one of two classes of men; you must either have men in Congress who are willing to become dependent upon others, which will destroy their usefulness, or you must have rich men. You must reserve these places for the rich or give them to the unworthy. There are many of our best men who cannot afford to spend their time here unless they get enough to support them. The people do not want men of moderate means excluded from Congress. They are willing that members of Congress shall have what it costs them to live here.

Senator Nye was a good deal disappointed over the failure of the Nebraska bill, for he fought very bravely for it. He had an amusing tilt with Sumner on that last night. I quote a few lines from the official report:

> Mr. Nye—Now, Mr. President, if Senators around me had left me alone, I should have been through long ago; but my conscientious friend from Massachusetts, I am terribly afraid, mistakes twinges of dyspepsia for constitutional scruples. [Laughter.]
>
> Mr. Sumner—I never had the dyspepsia in my life.
> Mr. Nye—I am glad to hear it; it is some other disease, then. [Laughter.] This word "white" is the nightmare of his mind; but even his own State—a State that I honor and respect—does not let all the black people vote, nor all the white people either. It requires them to be able to read and write. My friend, being so learned, thinks that the standard of manhood, Sir, to all this squeamishness I object in toto. I can well account for the opposition coming from the other side. They do not want two Republican Senators here. If Nebraska had sent two of a different color, they would have viewed this case altogether differently. My friend from Wisconsin [Mr. Doolittle] [illegible] a labored argument [illegible] the admission of Nebraska if she had sent here two Senators to support "my policy." Sir, these doubts and these objections that are raised rest upon two things that I do not acknowledge. The one on the other side rests in a political idea, not a principle; the one on this side from a conviction [illegible] that ought not to exist. It would take the magnifying power of the strongest microscope on earth to scrape up a [illegible] on this question.

Sumner, and Edmunds, of Vermont, were almost violent in opposition to the measure because negro suffrage was not in it. Sumner was sincere and everybody respected him for it, but Edmunds I fear only desired an excuse to stand with the President. However, [illegible] I am [illegible] both Nebraska and Colorado will come in next winter, in spite of the President's opposition. I may be mistaken, but such is the prospect at the present time.

New York is not a little excited over the cholera. It would not take very much to create a panic. Until within a few days the doctors and scientific men here [illegible] that there would be no cholera epidemic in the city, but when twenty deaths by the dreadful disease were reported in a single day, and thirty in another, and finally forty in another, all such assertions were abandoned. The Herald then seriously proposed the suppression of the facts! This would no doubt just suit Bennett and his business friends. The merchants of New York who have immense stocks of goods on hand, fear anything like a panic which would compel them to sell at low prices. So far buyers are not afraid to venture into the city and yet the death figures may soon become so alarming that outsiders will avoid the city as they would a plague-hospital.

There is a prospect that the plague will spread over the entire country. The Western cities fared the worst with it in 1849, and probably will do so this. It may not [illegible] its appearance in the far West and South till next winter or spring.

The Atlantic cable is working [illegible] again. For three or four days there were no dispatches, and the Herald and other journals [illegible] to cry it down as a failure. [illegible] has had a good effect [illegible] this side of the Atlantic. They have not [illegible] an aptitude for business thus far, which is a bad sign for the future. Congress [illegible], should be paid [illegible] to the Company on account of the fact that they have not fairly opened the line. Some of the journals complain that the management are imperfect. This may be true, but the fault, probably, is with the [illegible], not with the [illegible]

ONCE A WEEK.

[illegible] from San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 29th, 1866.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

We are on the eve of a municipal election, and as the Democratic party have been largely in the minority here for some years past, they are exceedingly anxious that some friendly breeze may waft them some help in this their hour of need, and it would seem as though their wishes were being granted by the intelligence (whether true or not they do not question) coming over the wires that the President has [illegible] the downfall of the Radicals in office and the appointment of conservatives, of the [illegible] in their places, all of which encourages the Democratic candidates hugely, as they have discovered new merit in Andy Johnson that they never saw before, and consider the Philadelphia Convention Platform just the thing. As there are always a considerable many votes cast for those who are supposed to be coming into power, the Democrats are trying to make all the capital they can out of it, but there is but little hope for them yet, unless the Republican party should fail to work together. As there is no State or Legislative ticket to be voted for, it resolves the election simply into a scramble for local offices and a desire on the part of the tax payers at least to elect the best men to the positions irrespective of politics. It is a remarkable fact that men occupying positions in mercantile houses with the same salary that our local officers get, can but barely support their families on it, or at the best save a few [illegible] dollars per year, while those who have held office for one or two terms come out with magnificent residences and sufficient means to live in comfort the balance of their natural life. There is no doubt as to the honesty of these disinterested citizens, but it simply proves them possessors of extra sagacity and shrewdness. I should like to try it one term at least, and learn the secret.

I wrote you in my last that the Coroner's Jury were investigating the Summer street catastrophe, and expressed my opinion that the guilty party would be made to suffer. That you may see how near correct my views were, I [illegible] the [illegible] of the deliberations of that intelligent body, hoping that you may appreciate the wise conclusions arrived at:

> "And from the above facts the jury [illegible] the conclusion that the fall of said building was [illegible] by an excavation having been made parallel with, and 2 feet 10 inches distant from its [illegible] wall; that said wall, under these circumstances, reposed upon a clay bank, inadequate to sustain the pressure of so great a weight; that in the eyes of casual observers, as well as [illegible] mechanics, it was evident, before the building fell, that while there was no moral certainty of it, there was at least a probability that the wall might give way; that, while such a probability existed, however faint it might be, it became the duty of the owner of said building and likewise of those having made the excavation adjoining it, to take the [illegible] precautions to guard others against the [illegible] of it, as it [illegible] one side involved the lives of [illegible] and on the other [illegible] laboring men.
> "They further [illegible] and are of [illegible] no one should perhaps be charged with criminal [illegible] there was, at least, a want of due care exhibited on the part of those whose duty it was to see that [illegible] measures be taken to prevent the happening of this [illegible] calamity."

"If you can beat it in style and [illegible] you can do better than I give you credit for. As an encouragement to the said jury we have another calamity almost as serious in its [illegible] to the boiler explosion at Petaluma day before yesterday, by which some six were killed and an equal number [illegible]

The Bulletin stated a few days ago that they had good reason for anticipating the withdrawal from your State of the opposition line of [illegible] now running to Portland, the whole [illegible] to be controlled by the California Steam Navigation Company, but thus far it needs confirmation, as the Sierra Nevada is advertised to sail to-morrow, and the Montana about the 5th of [illegible] at the low prices, so that you may hope for low fares and freight for a while longer, notwithstanding some of the wealthy Portland [illegible] are hoping for a change. The [illegible] of your people are benefitted by cheap traveling, and, being one of the crowd I desire the low rates [illegible] as long as possible.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, SEPT. 5, 1866.

Foreboding Revolutions.

That portion of the newspaper press in the Northern States which during the great rebellion was in love with resolutions, or at least never uttered a word against the then existing insurrection, has lately been indulging in the most vehement and indignant declamation against the "Abolitionists," who are accused of a design of again involving the country in war. The occasion of this outburst of frenzy is Raymond's late letter to the New York Times, in which the "little villain" pretends to reveal a "Radical" plot for armed resistance to President Johnson. Now the joke of all this is that the "plot" which the letter tells of and denounces as 'revolutionary' is, according to Raymond's own authority, a scheme of the President's; and if it is to have a beginning at all, will be inaugurated by him and not by Congress. In this letter, Raymond supposes that the Democrats will elect enough members to the next Congress to constitute, when joined with the members from the South a majority of that body, and that the President will then act upon the suggestion of Garret Davis and recognize these united factions as the Congress, to the exclusion of all the "Radical" or Union members. He supposes further, that the Union members will then invoke the assistance of the people of the North to maintain them in their position, and that war will thus be re-commenced. The most [illegible] feature of this [illegible] is that President Johnson is expected to take the initiative in it. If he follows the Raymond programme and recognizes a bogus body as the true Congress, his action will be revolutionary. As this is to be the commencement of the anticipated civil war, the President will therefore be the author of the revolution whose coming is foreshadowed by his friends.

What are the probabilities? What likelihood is there that Johnson can succeed in the designs Raymond attributes to him? He has scarcely the shadow of a chance for success. The Senate will be against him if the House is not, and if he undertakes the game he is expected to play, the Senate will refuse to recognize his bogus House of Representatives as a legitimate branch of Congress. Several years must elapse before the political complexion of the Senate can undergo any material change. Johnson will therefore find himself checkmated at the very beginning of the play. By no possibility can he obtain control of both branches of Congress during the continuance of his term. Nor is it probable that the Northern Copperheads will have a dozen more members in the next Congress than they have in this. The "tribune" is therefore not yet quite clear of the difficulties into which his recreancy has plunged him.

Last fall we charged the managers of the Statesman, (and the same persons control it now who managed it then) with desiring N[illegible]ith's re-election. This the Statesman flatly denied. But to judge from the number of letters it is now publishing from army officers and others, urging that Nesmith be returned, it would appear that at the very time it was making the denials, its managers were busily employed in obtaining letters of commendation to use in Nesmith's behalf when necessity should require it. It will strike most people that the man who is obliged to have his loyalty vouched for, is a rather slippery individual for Union men to support for United States Senator.

Those who have any acquaintance with the public men of the country must be struck with the very marked difference between the delegates in the Conventions of August 14th and September 3d at Philadelphia. While the former had not a name in it above a fourth-rate politician or statesman, and not more than one or two who sacrificed anything considerable in behalf of the Union, the latter presents the names of a large number of men who stand in the front rank of American statesmen, soldiers and patriots. It has not one man as delegate who can boast, as did Gov. Orr, of having fought for the rebellion.

It is in accord with the [illegible] of a Copperhead newspaper, to rail at the Philadelphia delegates, and to call them "Pharisees," because that on the Sabbath day some of them engaged in solemn prayer in behalf of [illegible] country. (See the Herald's [illegible] of September 4th.) Had these delegates got drunk, it would have been a little more [illegible] and would have better suited our neighbor's taste, perhaps.

The editor of the Walla Walla Statesman is still begging for a Federal office. He literally cries aloud and spares not. We suggest that he goes to Washington with Nasby on his next trip, and see A. Johnson about this vital matter. If Nasby succeeds in getting the postoffice at the "corners," surely Newell can get some other important position.

The Statesman editor says he has a letter in his possession written by General Grant, urging the re-election of Nesmith. Which strongly indicates that Nesmith is taking all necessary precautions preparatory to deserting the Democratic party when General Grant becomes the nominee of the Union party for President of the United States.

President Johnson is swinging out West, with a "ground swell." The further West he goes, the more perceptible is the "swell." See dispatches of this morning.

STATE ITEMS.

By the upper Columbia boat, Monday night, Wells, Fargo & Co. received at the Dalles $100,000 in treasure.

Hon. J. H. D. Henderson arrived in town last evening—Monday—by stage and went to Fort Vancouver this morning.

We learn from [illegible] that very full delegations from all parts of the State and Washington Territory, are present at the Grand Lodge of Good Templars.

It is reported that a man [illegible] learned, was recently drowned while crossing from Oysterville to the mouth of Yakima Bay, in a small boat.

The salmon fishing season is now over, says the Astoria Gazette, and the fishermen will soon have the last of their fish packed and off their hands. Over 8000 barrels, in wholes and halves, have been packed in this vicinity this year, and have brought nearly $12 per barrel, on the average.

During the night of August 29th, three Indians entered the stables of J. J. Jarvis at the "California House," Burnt river precinct, and cut loose the halters of four horses and five [illegible] and fired upon, they abandoned all but one horse, with which they got away.

Little Jimmy Fay, Nesmith's "cross between a rat-tarrier and a ring-tailed monkey," has mounted the editorial tripod of the Jacksonville Reporter, and is fiercely warning all Democrats to beware of Nesmith. There will be some rare cavorting and ranting in the Reporter now. Blow, Fay, and crack your cheeks! rage! blow!

J. G. Doudoff, one of a late party which [illegible] Mt. Hood, says: The mountain has changed materially on the south side, since I last ascended it, eight years ago. One large ridge that we then crossed has been broken and carried down by the glaciers and avalanches. Smoke and steam are still issuing from the mountain.

The Check-No route must be a decided success, judging from the amount of Idaho freight going up the Columbia river. Gentlemen in the employ of the O. S. N. Co. inform us that over one thousand tons of freight passed over the Dalles and Celilo road last week, and that the amount of freight has increased to such an extent, the Company find it necessary to run a daily line of steamers on the upper river.

The meeting of the Dalles Woolen Manufacturing Company was convened at an early hour, Monday evening. After a lengthy discussion, it was resolved to dissolve the incorporation and settle up the concern. One of the directors seemed to think the company "lacked brains," inasmuch as the President was absent. The chief projectors of the enterprise had very important "biz" elsewhere and could not be present at the meeting. It is a shame that the enterprise has turned out a failure. The project was one of much importance to Eastern Oregon.

Our Dalles correspondent writes, Sept. 3d: I wrote you last Friday eve that fears were entertained that the Indians had stolen the stage stock at Rock Creek. By a letter received last night from Camp Watson, I learn that they were stolen and run off south into the mountains. It is thought that Col. Baker may recover them, as they were stolen since he "took up the line of march." The writer says the Indians are worse on the route now traveled than they have been for the last two years. This naturally results from the fact that placing a large number of the soldiery on the Chico route has driven them into a section of country almost unprotected—a country, whose inhabitants are Americans, and in whose veins flow loyal blood; who have the right to claim something more than a passing notice.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO SEPTEMBER 3.

The "Party" encounter "Perils"—"My Policy" Received Coolly out West.

CLEVELAND, September 3.—President Johnson arrived here at 8 o'clock this evening, having had a pleasant trip from Buffalo, with receptions and short speeches all the way. The President's voice is growing hoarser and hoarser, and the fatigues of the trip are evidently wearing upon the whole party. It is also noticeable that the farther west the President goes the more coldly he and Mr. Seward are received, and more cheers are bestowed on General Grant and Admiral Farragut.

The Southern Union Convention—Its Organization.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3.—The Convention was inaugurated with great eclat according to the programme of the Union League and other political clubs. A procession was formed on Independence Square, headed by the Union League 500 strong, the National Union Club escorting the Southern delegates, and the organization called the "Boys in Blue" escorting the Northern delegation, with the Republican Invincible Club, firemen and citizens in the rear.

Fred Douglas walked with Theodore Tilton, and received great applause.

The streets were decorated with flags and mottoes, and crowded with people. The procession moved down Walnut to Third, up to Chestnut, up Chestnut to Broad. The formal welcome of the Southern delegates was pronounced by Charles Gibbon, in front of the Union League House. The Southern delegates entered the National Guards' Hall at 1 P. M., and Mr. Stokes of Tenn., read the call. Thos. J. Durant of Louisiana was made temporary Chairman, and a committee on credentials was appointed, consisting of James A. Bell of Texas, Gen. Harris and H. Thomas of Tennessee. Wm. R. Crane of Louisiana, Geo. K. Gilmon of Virginia, Gen. H. S. Northrup of West Virginia, Wm. W. Shaw of Georgia, D. H. Bingham of Alabama, R. G. Griffith of Kentucky, J. H. Ford of Mississippi, Gen. Rogers of Arkansas, H. K. Turnis of North Carolina, Gen. Dennison of Maryland, John Adams of Delaware, C. L. Robinson of Florida, D. C. Forney of the District of Columbia. A committee on permanent organization was also appointed, with A. J. Fletcher of Tennessee as Chairman, after which the convention adjourned till to-morrow.

The reception and proceedings in front of the Union League house called out at least ten thousand people. Mr. Gibbon greeted the delegates from the South as "fellow-loyalists, follow-citizens, friends, and brethren: There was no loyal blood on their hands and their souls were free from the guilt of treason. They had held fast to [illegible] had been [illegible], their pleasant places laid waste and themselves and their wives and children driven into exile. The sympathy which the men of the North felt for them at that time was flashed from a million of Northern bayonets and pronounced by the mouths of Northern cannon. He proclaimed the South returned to her duty. She must come in new robes, with new covenants for liberty, equality and justice, led by her own loyal Unionists, who are free from the taint of treason. What hope had they in the future, or what security from impudent traitors who were to be reinstated under the arbitrary will of one man under a Constitution they had defied and forsworn? The answer was already written in the blood of the murdered loyalists of New Orleans. The men of the South were here on a high and noble mission—that of re-establishing the Union on a broad and sure foundation—that of equal and exact justice to all men. [Cheers.] It should stand on no other. They could not be so unmindful of all the lessons of the past as to be led by vagrant politicians into another compromise with crime, instead of lifting up from degradation those who had been its victims."

The Voice of the Pacific States.

The following dispatch was announced as being received:

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1st.—To Hon. A. J. Hamilton, of Texas: The Pacific States send cordial congratulations to your Convention. May your deliberations promote the adoption of the only wise plan of reconstruction—that proposed by Congress. (Signed)

F. F. LOW, Governor of California,
H. G. BLASDELL, Governor of Nevada,
A. C. GIBBS, Governor of Oregon,
GEO. L. WOODS, Gov'r-elect of Oregon.

Gov. Hamilton, of Texas, replied to Mr. Gibbon's remarks, that they had hoped after the triumph of the National arms that those who had suffered long would have some indemnity for their losses, or at least security for the future. They had hoped to be permitted to return peacefully to their habitations and renew their [illegible] tions with the friends from whom they had so long been separated, but the experience of the last twelve months had taught them in bitterness of heart that the spirit which animates rebels was rampant to-day as when rebels first drew the sword. [Voices, "that's so."] He of all who aided that Government, was as rampant and incorrigible, although as defiant and denunciatory as vindictive and cruel as he was at any period during the rebellion. Seeing this, and realizing that, so far from being reunited to their homes, they were reunited to the same element which had sought their destruction and the destruction of the Government, some of them who happened to be at the National Capital [illegible] the time proper to call the Unionists of the South together, as their own condition and that of the country demanded it. They believed that there was not only danger to themselves, but a cloud though not bigger than a man's hand appears on the verge of the horizon, which might ultimately spread over the entire country. They therefore determined to make the present call, and they invoked the assistance and counsel of all their brethren everywhere throughout the United States. They asked the loyal delegations that came here to give them the hand of welcome and help them to renew their faith to the Government in a purer spirit than before, and prove to all the President's Cabinet and councils that the people of the North and South who were loyal to the Government would be satisfied with nothing less than the actual security of individual equality under the Constitution to all men. [Cheers.]

Rain to-night prevents a mass meeting, but a large crowd in the National Guard Hall was addressed by Horace Maynard and other eloquent Southerners.

Financial and Commercial.

NEW YORK, September 3.—Money firmer with a large supply. Government securities firmer under the advance in London, and gold lower for the same reason. Cotton [illegible] at 32½@33c. Wheat 3@5c lower.

NEWS BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

LONDON, September 3—Evening.—Consuls closed at 89⅛ for money; 5-20's 73¼.

OUR SAN FRANCISCO DISPATCH

SAN FRANCISCO, September 4.—The Bay View Railroad Co. has made a contract with J. L. Myers for construction of road from Townsend street to Bay View Park. The price is to be $130,000 for building and stocking the road, and having everything ready to commence running in 10 months.

Senators Nye and Stewart, and Representative Ashley, of Nevada, will address the people of this city this evening at the Metropolitan theatre. Among other features of the evening, the Veteran Corps will march down the main aisle and take seats upon the stage. The dress circle will be [illegible] for ladies and their escorts. The returned representatives were called upon during yesterday and last evening by large numbers of citizens of California and Nevada, and congratulated upon their political course.

We are informed that Patrick Byrnes, the father of Thos. Byrnes who was yesterday executed, died at his residence in San Souci valley this morning. His illness was a typhoid fever brought on by anxiety and grief concerning the case of his ungrateful son. Mr. Byrnes was an honest, industrious and worthy citizen.

Robt. B. Lloyd and Jas. W. Barnham have been discharged from their debts by a decree of the county court.

Ferdinand Loriano, indicted for manslaughter in the killing of Juan Yglesias, on Kearney street, was arraigned before Judge Sawyer, this morning, and plead not guilty.

A sailor named Harrison was knocked overboard on Saturday last, from the schooner William & Albert, on the Sacramento river. The body was recovered and brought down on the steamer Yosemite last evening, and is now at the dead-house. Deceased is said to have brothers in this State.

Judge Hoffman to-day rendered a decree condemning two copper stills which had been used in the illicit distillation of whisky, and ordered them to be held for the benefit of the Government.

SHELL PARK, Sept. 4, 3:20 P. M.—In the race to-day Eashoena won the first prize, Algerine second, Billy Vernon third, Venture distanced.

WATSONVILLE, Sept. 4.—The lifeless body of Wm Roach was taken from the bottom of a well sixty feet deep about a mile from town this morning. He left town last night at 11 o'clock on horseback on his way home, the last seen of him alive. Suspicions were at first entertained of foul play. An inquest was held over his body to-day and an examination of his wounds proved his death to have been accidental, and a verdict to that effect was rendered. He had evidently stopped at the well to get water. Deceased came to this country with Stephenson's regiment.

This morning about 3 o'clock, in the house of Martin Maguire, in which was kept a dead fall, two and a half miles east of Solado, on the Sacto road, was burned to the ground. Maguire's remains were found in the ruins burned beyond recognition. The arms and legs were burned from the body. Maguire was undoubtedly murdered and the building fired by the murderer to cover the crime, his object being plunder. Whether he succeeded in finding anything of value is not known. Maguire was supposed to have five or six hundred dollars about the premises.

The Markets.

Flour—Beyond a little inquiry for China, no export demand. However, the jobbing trade is steady at the current rates.

Wheat—Market well supplied. Choice lots find ready sale for export at $1 50; inferior for milling, of which there is considerable in market, is in little demand.

Barley—For old brewing, $1 60; choice, $1 65 per 100.

Old Legal Tenders.

Gold in New York yesterday afternoon was 145¼, and sterling 105@106¼. Legal Tenders are 72½ buying, and 73 selling. Mining stocks showed a little improvement. From the morning Board yesterday Savage advanced $30, Ophir $3, Yellow Jacket $7 50, Overman $2, and from the Board Saturday, Belcher advanced $12 50, Confidence $5, and Chollar Potosi $5.

Shipping.

Arrived—Steamer California, 2½ days from the Columbia river; Ship Lookout, hence for Boston—returned leaky.

Sailed—Bark Onston, Auckland; Bark Rainier, Puget Sound.

The Mobile Times is publishing lists of rebel dead, which it heads "THE ROLL OF HONOR." The same paper supports Andrew Johnson's policy.

IT IS DECIDED EVERY DAY that the VERY LATEST STYLE and BEST CLOTHING is sold at KOHN & FISHEL'S No. 111 Front Street. From the very fact that they have the LARGEST AND BEST STOCK IN THE CITY, it is to everybody's benefit to give them a call.

COUNTRY ROADS.—Any person not familiar with the re[illegible] would say, in looking over the hills west of this city and south of us, that nothing was there except hills, [illegible] and dense underbrush. Such is not the case. Although we have but little proof of the fact, [illegible] farmers and dealers from small towns [illegible] there is a pretty good region of country about [illegible]. Before Portland arrived at anything near its present growth and prosperity, there was a great deal of [illegible] over what is called the Hillsboro and Oregon City road, but of late years it is not traveled very much, although it is still a fair summer road. It is a great drawback to Portland that we have not better public thoroughfares, and in our humble way, we have repeatedly endeavored to stir the people up to a realizing sense of the importance of doing something in this respect. It would be an investment that would pay the largest kind of dividends, and more frequently; this putting our money into roads. We would not exclusively build plank roads along side of county roads, but construct good [illegible] routes, from one county to another, if [illegible]. Even toll roads, if built in the proper [illegible], and extended far enough, will pay every [illegible]. The farmer as well as the shareholder. It will [illegible] a season when the farmer is unable [illegible] his place of marketing, unless it be Portland [illegible] no farther south of us than the White House, [illegible]. The coaches of the Oregon Stage Company will soon be obliged to haul off from the end of [illegible] between Oregon City and Portland [illegible] the road cannot be traveled in winter. In [illegible] of the condition of the roads south of Milwaukie, on the east side of the river, very much of the travel is going via the Boon Ferry route, to Marion, and [illegible] counties, thus cutting off Oregon City entirely. At the present time much labor is being performed [illegible] over the mountains from the Fulton House. [illegible] we were upon the work, where we [illegible] what is being done is a great public good. The road will be [illegible] at least half a mile from the Fulton House to the intersection of the Boon Ferry and the Taylor Ferry roads, and the grade does not exceed [illegible] to the hundred feet, except in one place [illegible] the Portland McAdamized road. The [illegible] Tanner's creek, at Terwilliger's tannery, [illegible] across the canyon, will be avoided [illegible] which [illegible] Tanner's creek [illegible] built upon a strong stone culvert. The work is being performed under the direction of Mr. John [illegible], Supervisor, and is considerable credit to him. He informs us that he will not have [illegible] complete the work as it should be done, and will rely upon the public to help him out. We trust that people [illegible] generously to his calls for assistance, when he shall visit them. These improvements will not last [illegible] would to repair the old bridges, which are sadly [illegible] now, and it is hoped the good work will be [illegible] to completion.

[illegible]—The ladies of Vancouver have put their hands [illegible] at work, to raise a fund in aid of the [illegible] for that place. They will give [illegible] Hall, as will be seen by reference to our advertising [illegible] to be conducted on the [illegible] principle. We need not dwell on the subject of the [illegible] which alludes to the [illegible]. Our neighbors have suffered [illegible] by conflagrations, [illegible] their losses [illegible]. That our city [illegible] render them some [illegible] is undoubted, for [illegible] on the score of [illegible] always be [illegible] and willing to [illegible] the [illegible] of his fellow beings less. The Island has yet [illegible] from fires, but notwithstanding we have one of the best Departments in the country, we are liable to be called out some time, [illegible] as disas[illegible], or [illegible], Maine, we [illegible] feel grateful for assistance. The citizens of Vancouver, in addition to the [illegible], [illegible] by the recent fire, have contributed from [illegible] to aid their [illegible], and now [illegible] the recur[illegible] which so recently befel them. It is the duty of this [illegible] to aid them in their plans, [illegible] the party to be given by the [illegible], whether the party is [illegible] or not, will show a [illegible] justly be proud of.

New Book.

Pictorial Book of Anecdotes and Incidents of the Rebellion, Civil, Military and Domestic; Embracing the most Brilliant and Remarkable Anecdotical Events of the Great Conflict in the United States. By Frazar Kirkland. Hartford Publishing Company, Hartford, Conn. T. B. Trevett, General Agent for Oregon and Washington Territory.

We have here a large book of nearly 700 pages beautifully printed and illustrated. It presents in attractive form and in a classified manner, some thousands of the most thrilling and wonderful incidents in the nation's four years' experience of war. It is just such a book as boys will devour with the greatest eagerness and relish; nor will older people be able to resist the fascination of many things recorded in its pages. Agents are wanted to canvass for the book. Applications to be made to the General Agent for Oregon.

A Word to the Aged.—In the decline of life the loss of vital force consequent upon physical decay, can only be safely supplied by some vivifying preparation which recruits the strength and spirits, without entailing the exhaustion which is always the final effect of ordinary stimulants. We tender to the aged
DR. HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS,
As an invigorant and restorative, immediate in its beneficial action and permanent in its effect. It tones the stomach, improves the appetite, acts like a charm upon the spirits. For dyspepsia, oppression after eating, bilious cholic, wind cholic, spasms of the stomach, sick or nervous head ache, chills and fever, prostration, and all the complaints special to the feebler sex, the Bitters are earnestly recommended by thousands who have witnessed their superior efficacy in such cases. Sold by all druggists and dealers everywhere.

GRAEFENBERG
UTERINE CATHOLICON
If faithfully used according to directions will cure every case of Diabetes, and greatly mitigate the troublesome effects caused by a relaxation of the outlet of the bladder. It is a most successful remedy for Gravel and other diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, and for Female Diseases is unequaled. The Catholicon uniformly cures Prolapsus Uteri, Whites, all Irregularities of the Monthly Turns, Suppression, Incontinence of Urine, Bloating and Dropsical Swellings, and all Diseases of Pregnancy. The specific action of this medicine is immediate and certain upon the Uterine and Abdominal Muscles and Ligaments; restoring them to as healthy a state as those of childhood and youth, so that patients who have used the Graefenberg Company's Uterine Catholicon cannot sufficiently express their gratitude for the relief afforded. S. T.—1860.—X.
Persons of sedentary habits troubled with weakness, lassitude, palpitation of the heart, lack of appetite, distress after eating, torpid liver, constipation, &c., deserve to suffer if they will not try the celebrated
PLANTATION BITTERS,
Which are now recommended by the highest medical authorities, and warranted to produce an immediate beneficial effect. They are exceedingly agreeable, perfectly pure, and must supercede all other tonics where a healthy, gentle stimulant is required.
They purify, strengthen and invigorate.
They create a healthy appetite.
They are an antidote to change of water and diet.
They overcome effects of dissipation and late hours.
They strengthen the system and enliven the mind.
They prevent miasmatic and intermittent fevers.
They purify the breath and acidity of the stomach
They cure Dyspepsia and Constipation.
They cure Diarrhea and Cholera Morbus.
They cure Liver Complaint and Nervous Headache.
They make the weak strong, the languid brilliant, and are exhausted nature's great restorer. They are composed of the celebrated Calisaya bark, wintergreen, sassafras, roots and herbs, all preserved in perfectly pure St. Croix rum. For particulars, see circulars and testimonials around each bottle.
Beware of impostors. Examine every bottle. See that it has our private U. S. Stamp unmutilated over the cork, with plantation scene, and our signature on a fine steel plate side label. See that our bottle is not refilled with spurious and deleterious stuff. Any person pretending to sell Plantation Bitters by the gallon or in Bulk, is an impostor. Any person imitating this bottle, or selling any other material therein, whether called Plantation Bitters or not, is a criminal under the U. S. Law, and will be so prosecuted by us. We already have our eye on several parties re-filling our bottles, &c., who will succeed in getting themselves into close quarters. The demand for Drake's Plantation Bitters from ladies, clergymen, merchants, &c., is incredible. The simple trial of a bottle is the evidence we present of their worth and superiority. They are sold by all respectable druggists, grocers, physicians, hotels, saloons, steamboats and country stores.

HOSTETTER'S
CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.
READ AND REFLECT.

Make sure of HEALTH! "But how?" you ask;
We answer, 'tis an easy task.
Strengthen the STOMACH, and sustain
The NERVES, the servants of the brain.
The LIVER keep in active play
And regulate, from day to day.
Each organ aid, on Nature's plan,
Brace and refresh the INNER MAN,
And like a watch that's kept in chime
By constant care, with railroad time,
The system's tone and strength renew,
And thereby cheer the spirits, too.
"How," you inquire, "can this be done?
This Victory o'er Disease be won?"
"HOSTETTER'S BITTERS," we reply,
Is HEALTH'S SUPREME PROTECTION—TRY!

As a means of regenerating the disordered and enfeebled system, regulating every function of the internal organs, reviving the depressed spirits, invigorating the constitution, and prolonging life, no medicinal preparation, either of the past or the present time, has been so completely and universally successful as
HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.

Against the vapors foul prepare,
That fever-taint the heavy air.
Drink not unmixed the water found
In prairies, woods or marshy ground.
If sedentary toil you ply,
Nature you must assist—or die—
For when debarred from exercise
For artificial aid she cries.
Medicine's grand purpose and intent
Is threatened evil to prevent;
And if you'd be relieved or spared
From ills that crush the unprepared,
Hostetter's Bitters use—for these
They are the SUREST ANTIDOTE.

To set at defiance the miasma of unhealthy soils, the [illegible] of unwholesome water, the effluvia of crowded work-rooms and factories, and the baneful influence of sedentary employments, it is only [illegible] to be fore-armed with
HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.

Dyspepsia's pangs, that rack and grind
The body, and depress the mind;
Agues, that as they go and come,
Make life a constant martyrdom;
Colics and dysenteric pains,
'Neath which the strong man's vigor wanes;
Bilious complaints, those tedious ills,
Ne'er conquered yet by drastic pills;
Dread diarrhoea that cannot be
Cured by destructive mercury;
Slow constitutional decay
That brings Death nearer, day by day;
Nervous prostration, mental gloom
Heralds of madness or the tomb;
For these [illegible] mineral [illegible] fail—
Means of Relief at least we hail,
Hostetter's Bitters—medicine sure,
Not to prevent, alone, but cure.

In dyspepsia, fever and ague, bilious complaints, constitutional and nervous debility, constipation, sea-sickness, spasms, and in all complaints of Man or Woman, proceeding from casual or inherent weakness of the body, the one great remedy and restorative is
HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.

To wanderers on sea or land,
From Polar shore to Tropic strand;
To households lone, in regions new,
And dwellers in great cities, too;
To soldiers in camp, fort and field,
Who need against disease a shield;
To miners, California bound,
And tillers of wet, marshy ground;
To feeble wives of fragile mold;
To young and middle-aged, and old;
To those in health, who would enjoy
Heaven's best gifts without alloy;
To all the strengthless, weak and pale,
Who droop, yet know not what they ail,
Hostetter's Bitters we present
As Health's most potent element.

If there is any value in public opinion, or any weight in medical testimony, the very best and safest Tonic, Corrective and Alterative now before the world is
HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.
Sold by respectable druggists in all parts of the world.

G. VENARD,
CHARTRES COFFEE!
Manufactory Established in June, 1851.
STEAM POWER, NOS. 625 AND 631 FRONT ST.
HAS CONSTANTLY ON HAND GROUND AND ROASTED COFFEE, GREEN COFFEE of the best qualities. CREAM OF TARTAR and SPICES of all sorts.
The undersigned, who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions, the sale of which daily increases. The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise, which commands here, and in the markets of the interior, a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day he sees increasing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G. VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE. This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless, buyers should be forewarned, and placed on their guard against this practice.

The Devil's Last Walk.

BY CHARLES DICKENS.

From brimstone bed at break of day
A devil has walking gone—
To trample and char the flowers to death,
To infest the air with his pestilent breath,
And to cloud the morning sun.

And pray how was this devil dressed?
Oh! he was cased in an iron vest;
His scales were closed and his rivets true,
With never a chink for spear to get through.

And over the hill and over the dale
He walked, and over the plain,
And an air gun elegant, polished and round,
That would kill miles off with never a sound,
He twirled like a harmless cane.

And over the laurels of full blown Fame
And the tender shoots of young Good Name
He stamped with his merciless hoof of shame,
And he left his print on each.
And backward and forwards he wiggled his tail,
Through rose-trimmed gardens and lily-strewn vale
Marked his course by a loathsome trail,
Like a snail track over a peach.

He spied a laborer hard at work,
Early at his vocation,
His prominence offered a capital shot.
"Oh ho!" said the devil, "he sees me not,"
So he shouldered his piece, and he aimed, God wot!
With terrible calculation!

He saw young innocent folks at play,
Blameless, beautiful, wise and gay,
The prospect liked not him;
So a vitriol flask from his pouch he drew,
('Twas a devilish deed!) and the liquid threw
O'er the fair young group, whom he left a crew
Of monsters scarred and grim.

He peered in a house; 'twas a goodly manse,
Of time and weather had stood the chance,
And stood erect and fair.
"Aha!" quoth the devil "the pile looks well,
But I've studied fireworks for nothing in hell,
If I can't find out when a match or a shell
May lead to combustion there."

The Devil could creep where no other fiends can,
He found an unguarded spot,
Where he straped a mine with diligent hoof,
And—his train prepared—wall, pillar and roof,
Blew up in the air like shot.

That breach in the roof is mended now;
Its whereabouts few can tell.
But the Devil had done his work that day,
So he crawled him back for his master's pay
Which he royally spent in a jovial way
With the lowest Devils in Hell.

"There are many Devils that walk this world,
Devils great and small,
Devils with tails and Devils without,"
Devils who whisper, Devils who shout,
Devils who mystify, Devils who teach;
But the Calumny Devil is hard to reach
As the snail who now on some distant beach,
Is digesting the core of my favorite peach—
Is the shabbiest Devil of all.

Jean Rathburne's Life.

A spring long and cold, a short and fervid summer, an autumn bearing scant fruit—that was Jean Rathburne's life. And now she is dead, and the long, wild grasses are tangled above her grave by vagrant winds which wanton through them.

It was the will she left behind her which was the key-note to her life, and made it significant—a strange will, yet perfectly legal, and proved in court like the rest of them. She bequeathed, after a few trifling legacies, all her fortune—some three hundred thousand dollars—under the supervision of competent trustees, to further the happiness of seven young orphan girls. It was, of course, the income which was to be used thus, the money itself was to be a permanent fund, and those whom it enriched, when they married or otherwise ceased to need its aid, were to have their places filled by the trustees. She chose the first board of managers herself, and made provisions, when any of the number should die, for the election of others in their stead.

She explained her intention minutely. It was not to make the girls good merely, or respectable merely, or well-clothed and well-fed merely; but, if possible, to make them happy, to indulge their whims, and give their individualities a chance. For, she said, and this voice from her very grave was the only complaint she had ever been known to utter:

"One woman, who has found life very sad, would like to make it brighter for some of those who will live after her."

That was all, a quiet, calm statement of facts—she had found life very sad—but did any wail ever come out of bitterer depths?

Her parents had died before she could remember them, and left her a fortune and a guardian; left her, too, with a nature at once shy and sensitive, with a tendency to morbidness and hypochondria, which needed, sorely, the influence of a warm, loving, cheerful home.

Instead of that Sampson Dredlife and his wife starved her and froze her. I do not mean literally; there was fire and food enough in their great, comfortable house, and Miss Rathburne, as an heiress should, was served with the best.

But she was always Miss Rathburne—never Jeanie, or darling, or mother's blessing, or heart's delight, or any of those fond, foolish names familiar to the lips of happy mothers. She knew well enough that no one loved her, and that strengthened her shyness, and deepened her despondency.

So she grew up to twenty-one, a long, slow, cold spring, as I said. Then her fortune came into her own hands, and with a certain Widow Dredlife, a sister-in-law of Sampson, to matronize the establishment, she went into a house of her own. The widow carried with her the old Dredlife influence, and the new home was at first scarcely other than a repetition of the old. Except that now Miss Rathburne began to go into society, and was enough of an heiress to be received there with favor.

She was not pretty, yet her figure was lithe and slender, her complexion was clear, and if she had ever been animated might have been bright. Her eyes were large and dark, but the fire in them smouldered rather than sparkled. If she had had a little self-esteem, if some one had told her now and then that she was handsome, she might have been so; for many a woman sets up for a beauty on far less capital. But compliments never flowed in the Dredlife soil, and Jean had grown up feeling herself hopelessly plain, till the feeling had affected the very hue and lineaments of her countenance.

She had no taste in dress, either—women seldom have who do not see any charm in their own faces. She wore colors which made her look sallow or dark nearly always; and her gowns detracted from the grace of her figure instead of being skillfully chosen to enhance it.

According to some creeds all this should have made her good by making her humble, but it had just the opposite effect. It nourished secretly a bitter, cynical pride, a grudging sense of injustice, a hard self-contempt—noxious weeds which do not grow in that sweet Valley of Humiliation where Bunyan's pilgrims walked, and "the herb called heartsease flourished."

This was just the state—sick of herself, at odds with the world, yet desperately bent on wringing happiness out of something—in which Jack Brevoort found her.

He did not love Jean Rathburne—you are not to suppose that for a moment. At her brightest and best she would never have been his style; besides, a little blue-eyed girl, at home in his mother's nursery, a poor cousin, held so much heart as he had, and was more to him than any one else ever would be. But he loved money just as entirely as he did, and it is not in such cases that two negatives make an affirmative. Of course he could be much more dangerous to Miss Rathburne's peace than if he had really loved her, for his coolness would enable him to take advantage of all openings. He sorely needed money, and he had settled it with himself that he must marry it. He thought fate, which should, of course, have a special kindness for the old Brevoort blood, had placed her in his way on purpose.

He meant to make her in love with him; so he commenced, like a skillful tactician, by trying to make her in love with herself. For the first time she found herself studied with unmistakable interest. He noticed her tastes, and showed quietly his appreciation of them. He gave her hints about dress, and she grew handsome rapidly—much to his satisfaction; for, though he would have been ready to marry her in any case, it would be much more agreeable to have a wife who furnished to spectators an excuse for one's choice in something besides dollars and cents.

It was not altogether the new colors that she wore which improved her. A subtle flame ran through all her veins, and kindled the smouldering fire in her eye. Her cheeks were pale no longer, or her face spiritless. When she looked in the glass she saw what seemed to her, in contrast with her own self, a radiant vision. And when with this new Jean Rathburne Jack Brevoort began to fall in love it did not surprise or startle her.

This was the Summer of her life—fervid as short; it lasted three months. This time only, to her sad, colorless existence, came happiness! Brevoort was an ardent lover. He was gifted in the art of seeming to a degree amounting to positive genius. Then Jean was too steadily honest herself to doubt the honesty of others, and too delicately generous ever to remember that she was rich and he was poor. So her summer was warm and bright, and all her roses bloomed!

It was something to see her in those days—her old dead-and-alive self no longer; in its stead a sparkling creature, melting into the unspeakable glory of love and womanhood. How a man who truly loved her would have delighted in what Jack Brevoort watched with the cynical coolness of Mephistopheles!

He hurried on the preparations for their marriage when once she had accepted him. He could not do without her, he said, longer than till fall. It was the truest word he had uttered since he began his courtship; but the need he had of her was of a nature he would not have found it pleasant to communicate. She thought it was the eagerness of love.

It was to make some of the arrangements which his approaching marriage rendered necessary that Brevoort went out of town for a couple of days; and of course in his character of impatient lover, he must write each day to his betrothed. The first letter—Jean Rathburne's first love-letter—was full of subtly sweet words, tender phrases, allusions which made her pulse beat fast. She read it till she knew it by heart, and then kept reading it over to see if she had forgotten any thing.

The second she opened with fingers trembling with expectation. It commenced with "Dear Hal!" Her delicate sense of honor bade her fold it up again, for she understood at once that it had been sent to her by mistake. But as she doubled it over she caught her own name. She would have been more than woman if she had not read it then.

It was simply a letter of one fast young man to another, about betting and bets and horses. It shocked her taste; but she loved him enough to have excused it but for this passage:

"George cannot say that I am not making effort enough to pay him. I am to marry Miss Rathburne in October; splendid woman as she is, she is not my style—never would have been. I care more for Nell's little finger. However, a man who owes forty thousand dollars, and has some conscience still left about paying it, can't very well afford to indulge in the luxury of a heart. (I believe I got rid of mine pretty effectually some time ago.

Those were words which no sophistry could ever beguile her into forgiving. Her summer was over. The untimely black frost had come.

Who "Nell" was she did not care, or "George," or "Hal." She had no curiosity at all. Enough for her that love had failed her.

She looked in the glass with sad changed eyes, and lost forever all the fond self-complacence of recent days. There was nothing about her after all. She had been deceiving herself yet more utterly than she had been deceived. The very depth of her self-abasement made her patient.

It was morning when the letter came, and at night Brevoort was to return. So she sat all day and waited, without knowing how long the hours were, or feeling once the weariness of delay. She felt as if her heart and her pulse were standing still, waiting also. She was too utterly benumbed to care for anything. Through the weary day the only thing like occupation which she attempted, was to draw one check for fifty thousand dollars in favor of Jack Brevoort, and sign it.

At last he came. She heard the well-known ring, the firm, proud step in the hall—how she had loved to note and remember every one of his peculiarities! Then he opened the door and came up to her as usual.

She made a slight gesture of warning, and that, or something in her face, expressed the enthusiasm which would otherwise have expressed itself in caresses.

"I believe forty thousand dollars is the amount of your debts?" she asked in a clear, metallic tone.

For once his self-possession failed him. His knees shook under him, and he sat down.

"Who told you?" he gasped.

"Yourself."

She took out the letter and laid it in his hands. He looked at it, and knew Jean Rathburne well enough to give up his game.

"I haven't one word to say, though I'm not quite so heartless, perhaps, as that letter makes me seem. I should have been kind to you. But you may as well despise me through and through."

"Just as well," she answered, dryly. "Of course I withdraw from my promise to marry you; but your good intentions about paying your debts must not be frustrated by my troth-breaking. Here is a check for fifty thousand dollars. The margin of ten thousand over your own estimate of your liabilities will cover any little items you may chance to have forgotten, and make you a free man again, who can afford to have a heart."

"Do you think me mean enough to take it?"

"I think you will take it. There is a kind of justice in it, too. I would have given you several times as much, freely, if you had loved me as I thought. You deserve something for the weariness it must have been to you to act a part so long."

Her voice softened while she spoke to a tender, womanly pathos. He looked at her, with her sad, downcast eyes, her heavily-falling hair, her face that in its very woe was sweet, and he came nearer to loving her than he ever had before.

"You can't forgive me," he said, "and I won't ask you."

Then he took his hat and went away, leaving the check lying on the table.

She sent it to him next day in an envelope, without an additional word. Pride bade him return it; but his necessities restrained him. Jean Rathburne smiled grimly when the check came back to her from the bank, punctured, like a railroad ticket, with little round holes.

Pride would have kept some women, in her place, in the midst of the world. She was prouder still, and disregarded the world altogether. She never was seen any more in society. She had had her day—her summer was gone, with its roses. She chose to pass her autumn alone. She pensioned off the widow Dredlife, and sent her away. She did not feel young or volatile enough to need matronizing any more.

If she suffered, no one knew it. As I said, the only complaint she was ever known to utter, was that sentence in her strange will.

She died young. Natures like hers wear out fast, when no spring of hope sustains them. Without doubt she was thankful when the life that had been so sad was over. She did not know, there under the daisies, that the first tears Jack Brevoort had wept in years were shed above her grave.

The Convention at the Dalles "Without distinction of Party."

DALLES CITY, Sept. 1, 1866.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

The Mountaineer is in trouble lest it should prove unworthy of the reward it has received for its treachery to the Union party. Therefore Conventions must be called, that it may be made to appear that the people in mass indorse Andy, Doolittle & Co. His policy must be forced down their throats whether they will or not.

A man with a bell goes about the Dalles and informs the good people that some one will speak on the political issues of the day, at the Court-House. The language in which this notice was given, was so unintelligible that none but the initiated knew what he meant. The office-holders rushed to the hall and organized a Convention. There were twenty-three present, all Copperheads, with the exception of Jimmy Halloran. The active men were seedy, needy limbs of the law, who have nothing else to do but to look after the crumbs that fall from Andy's table.

The Convention was thrown into a great state of excitement by the announcement that a delegation of traitors was waiting to be introduced to that august body. Preparations were made to receive them, when a delegation of three was introduced. On entering, one of them made the following eloquent speech: "Ib bees goot tailor; Ib make goot fit. Johnson he bees goot tailor, too."

On the strength of this, the old "war horse," Col. Kelly, arose, and, in a stentorian voice, replied: "President Johnson was a good tailor and statesman." Here the excitement subsided.

The address of the Philadelphia Convention was read while the active members of the Convention took a lengthy nap to prepare themselves for their eloquent speeches. After this refreshment a few feeble remarks were made. A resolution was adopted to take the whole at one dose, when this enormous Convention of thirty minutes' growth adjourned sine die.

This, Jimmy calls a "Convention of the citizens of Wasco county."

A petition has been circulated, under the auspices of O. Humason, O. S. Savage & Co., asking the senator from this county to cast his vote for J. W. Nesmith for United States Senator, and the Mountaineer thinks all the Union men but six signed it. When the facts are, there are only about thirty names on it, and the most of them are old Copperheads. A counter petition is being circulated, which contains about one hundred names now and it is still going round.

WANING FORTUNES OF IMPERIALISM IN MEXICO.—We learn, by a letter from Colima, that the French Director of the Mexican customhouses on the Pacific coast has removed all the Imperialists who held offices of importance within his jurisdiction. The reason is not given, but the act furnishes additional evidence of the disorganized condition of the "Empire."—Bulletin.

The Earl of Derby, now Prime Minister of England, has already occupied that office twice. He was born in 1799. Benjamin Disraeli, the new Chancellor of the Exchequer, has also twice filled that position before. Mr. Walpole, the Home Secretary, held that office in 1852, '53, '59. The new President of the Council, Duke of Buckingham, is only twenty-three years old.

Johnson telegraphed to the military in New Orleans, "You must sustain the civil authorities." And Sheridan telegraphed to Grant that the "Civil authorities committed a most cold blooded and atrocious murder." What, then, is Johnson's share in the guilt? Accessory before the fact.

The Ballet—Cruelty of the Training School.

[Paris Correspondence of the N. O. Picayune.]

A training school for the first class of dancing girls is scarcely a less painful spectacle. The first thing done is to place the feet in hollow wooden clamps or boxes, whose bottom and top are stoutly strapped together, and which are moved by straps, so as to bring the heels of the feet heel to heel, while the knees remained turned out. This is extremely painful under any circumstances; it is doubly painful when the poor girl's feet are swollen and bruised as they almost always are. This exercise lasts half an hour. Then for another half hour she is obliged to place first her left, and then her right foot on a wooden bar, which is placed on a level with her chin. Then they dance all the steps used in ballets. This series of exercises must be pursued and reviewed all day long, until exhausted nature sinks.

It is said, after a lesson two hours' long, without an instant's pause, M'lle Marie Taglioni—the Taglioni—fell half dead on the floor of her chamber, and was undressed, sponged and dressed before she recovered consciousness. Her father, who gave her the lesson, stood by and made no comment on the scene, except to say: "She will be unusually brilliant to-night." She was unusually brilliant that night. A danseuse shines in her profession only by this assiduous exercise, which is given when she is seven years old, and ends only with her retirement from the stage. If she ceases at once—if she goes to the seashore for pleasure—if she goes to the medicinal springs for recreation—upon her return to Paris she must labor three times more than ever she did to regain her old suppleness and elasticity and airiness. And woe to her if idleness brings flesh! that flesh must be dissipated, for flesh is a dancing girl's enemy, it will prove her death. People don't go to ballets to see quivering jelly. There are some dancing girls who either are naturally stiff, or are ambitious to shine in their profession. These exercises are not the only gymnastics resorted to by these step children of nature, and these ambitious girls. They are constantly striving to invent some new exercise which shall better "turn" and "break" themselves.

It is said the beautiful M'lle Eugenie Fiocre ambitious girl!—has invented a process which possesses the advantage of simultaneously "turning" and "breaking" her. She lies on the floor of her chamber; her face is turned toward the floor. She then makes her servant, a German girl of immense weight, stand on her back and press with all the weight of her body upon the danseuse, who often finds the pain so great as to bring forth tears despite all her efforts. Several rival danseuses have tried it, but were unable to withstand the pain. She says she owes her marvelous lightness to this exercise, which she repeatedly takes during the day. She has to expose herself almost every night she plays, to serious dangers. There was in the first act of Theophile Gautier's ballet La Peri, so perilous a leap, the danseuse who filled the leading part, did really place her life in jeopardy every night she played it. One evening Carlotti Grisi was dancing the part, M. Petipas, her partner, failed to mind his business. She, lacking support, fell with such violence as to fracture her skull. They are obliged to stand in the giddiest postures on "practicables" not wider than a lady's hand. They are suspended by iron wire—necessarily as slight as possible for illusion's sake—while "flying to the very bottom or top of the theatre. There is the perpetual danger of fire. And, when the first crow's foot traces its sinuous lines in the eye's corner, and the slender form loses its Diana's firm, full, and yet delicate outline in a mass of flesh—the danseuse's career is ended. Until this fatal hour she receives a few hundred dollars a year for all these pains—all these perils. True, there is the straw ring which oftentimes is more valuable than the gold ring of the Fauburg St. Germain, but what perils lurk around it! Would it not have been infinitely better to have adopted the shop and have married in the course of time a shop-keeper, and together win independence of fortune?

SOMETHING NEW!

A NEW LIGHT!

DANFORD'S

Atmospheric Coal Oil Gas Lamp!

ARTIFICIAL LIGHT OF SOME SORT IS A UNIVERSAL necessity. A Safe, Cheap and Brilliant one is a luxury heretofore only enjoyed heretofore by those who live in large cities where Gas is used. Years of study and much capital have been exhausted in experiments to produce a lamp wherein the ordinary Kerosene or Coal Oil could be used without a chimney, and without unpleasant odor while in use. That fruitful source of expense, trouble and annoyance, the chimney, is in DANFORD'S COAL OIL GAS LAMP avoided; it is the most perfect Lamp and will entirely supersede all other Coal Oil Lamps; it is the cheapest artificial light that can be used, yielding the light of an ordinary six foot Gas burner for less than one cent per hour, or double the quantity of light of an ordinary Chimney Lamp, for one third the cost. It will burn when turned down to a taper-light, ten hours for a cent, is free from smoke, can be carried from room to room and the wind will not blow it out. These LAMPS will be on exhibition and for sale at the Music and Art Gallery of Shanahan & Dufrene, corner of Morrison and First streets.

Pure Old Bourbon

WHISKY!

THIS BRAND HAS SUSTAINED ITS REPUTATION as being a PURE, RELIABLE ARTICLE, and is daily growing in favor. But several parties are bottling an inferior Whisky and labelling and selling it as my brand, in many cases using my bottles.

Purchasers will be careful and see that my fac-simile signature covers the cork.

For sale by all respectable druggists and grocers.

"CONSTITUTION WATER,"

THE ONLY REMEDY FOR DISEASES OF THE

BLADDER, KIDNEYS,

Gravel, Dropsical Swellings,

GENITAL DEBILITY, ETC.

THE ASTONISHING SUCCESS WHICH HAS ATtended this invaluable medicine renders it the most valuable one ever discovered. No language can convey an adequate idea of the immediate and almost miraculous change which it occasions in the debilitated and shattered system. In fact, it stands unrivalled as a remedy for the permanent cure of the maladies above-mentioned, and also—

DIABETES, IMPOTENCY,
LOSS OF MUSCULAR ENERGY,
PHYSICAL PROSTRATION,
INDIGESTION,
SEMINAL WEAKNESS,
GLEET, FLUOR ALBUS,

And in every disease any way connected with the disorder or decay of the PROCREATIVE FUNCTIONS. Persons about to marry, if conscious of any weakness, should take the

CONSTITUTION WATER,

MEDICAL WONDER.

The stooping, trembling victim of depression and debility becomes a new man; he stands erect, he moves with a firm step; his mind, which was previously sunk in gloom of an almost idiotic apathy, becomes bright and active; and he goes forth regenerated, conscious of new vigor.—The medicine reaches the CONSTITUTION itself, and restores it to its normal condition.

IRRITATION OF THE NECK OF THE BLADDER,
